Checklist: SEO

Page Titles

The content of the page title is the clickable headline for listings on Search Engine Result Pages (SERPs) and certain social media shares.

☐ Are keywords in the beginning of the title?

☐ Am I using keyword phrases?

☐ Is my title 50 characters or less?

Summary Description (Meta Data)

On our platform, we don't require you to fill in specific metadata, but you should still be aware of what search engines are picking up. You can add a summary on most types of pages that will display as the page description on SERPs.

☐ Is my page summary 160 characters or less?

☐ Does my page summary accurately describe the topic of the page?

☐ Does my page summary include keywords?

☐ Is it enticing enough for people to click on?

Headers

Headers are used to separate blocks of information for scannability. Formatting your page with headers help readers and SEO.

☐ Do my headers include related keywords?

☐ Do my headers help grab the topics of the main post?

☐ Am I using headers to separate blocks of related content (NOT as a styling tool)?

Body Copy

Providing original value is the best SEO strategy. Search engines prefer content that is well organized and has useful information.

☐ Is my page or post between 400 and 900 words?

☐ Do I use headers and break my content up into smaller paragraphs?

☐ Do I include relevant links?

Page Location

Page nomenclature is a labeling system. Your pages should fit logically in subpages, etc.

☐ Is my site page easy to find in a menu or submenu?

☐ Can the user tell where they are and how they got there?

☐ Is my blog post appropriately tagged by topic?

Images & Media

File names should be descriptive and include keywords or phrases. Avoid using numbers or a string of symbols or characters.

☐ Are my images clearly named using hyphens between words?

☐ Do my images contain alt text?

☐ Do I include a caption with the image (including source if needed)?
