GovHub Block Types

Blocks are small chunks of information that become part of the larger content types. They don't get their own page. You can embed blocks on Landing Pages or within the text editor of a Book Page (body), Event (details and recap), FAQ (answer), How Do I (step), News (body), or Topic Page (body).
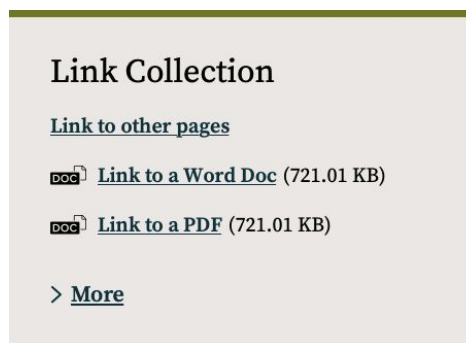

Note, these block types are still in development and are subject to change. We are still working on additional block types and will release training when they are ready.

Automatic Teasers

When promoting a single item of certain Content Types, select an automatic teaser. It will pull content from the original node and display as pre-designed for this specific type of content.

Here are what automatic teasers look like for Bios, Contacts, Events, Locations, and News/Press Release.

Bio Teaser
Bio's Role

This is an introduction to this Bio. It will probably include a little bit about this person's responsibilities with their organization.

Contact Teaser

Name of Person
You can add some notes about this Contact. If people should Contact this role for certain purposes, this is a good place to explain that.

Micro-content: Last Resort

Whenever possible, use one of the above micro-content or teaser types. This makes the best use of GovHub's structured content model.

However, sometimes you need to add a block of fully-customizable text to a Landing Page. That's when you should use a Text Block.

Text Block

You can make the description text in a Text Block bold, italic, and linked. You can also add lists:

- Like this
- Unordered list

Need a new section of text?

Add a Heading

It's just that easy! Text blocks are a great thing. They let you put a decent bit of content right on a landing page.
